

FR/SN

DAILY MAIL
15 AUG 2007

course. Kate O'Fathartaigh is the Darwin Rose, a lawyer who hopes to branch into humanitarian law. Niamh O'Kane from Derry has just finished her Bachelor in Education, and hopes to work with those with speech impediments. Having once suffered with a stammer and been helped to overcome it, she is intent on offering the same assistance.

It is clear that a pattern is forming. All of these young women are giving to society, all are upstanding members of their communities, their contribution is not just important, it is vital. We need women like these.

Celebration

Aileen McCarthy, originally from Cork, is the Dubal Rose, a businesswoman working in real estate. Aoife Judge from Dublin, has just finished her degree in history and politics in UCD, and is actively involved in her church. Aisling Rehill, from Fernagh, is studying to become a physiotherapist.

by Mary Stanley